Metro's guide to watching the royal wedding

Here's everything you need to know before tuning in.

HENRIETTA JONES

You've survived the Lifetime movie (oh so bad, yet oh so good), you've watched the prime time specials and binged-watched seven seasons of "Suits." Now, it's time to make yourself a plate of crumpets, curl up on the couch in your PJs and tune into the TV wedding of the year.

The night before

Don't pretend you haven't canceled Friday so you can be up in time for Saturday's wedding. For those staying home who fancy a giggle, at 8 p.m., TLC is offering up the one-hour "Prince Harry: Wild No More" documentary, followed by a one-hour "Meghan Markle: A Royal Love Story" special. At 10 p.m., things get a little more serious when ABC's "20/20" focuses on the royal wedding.

How to watch

Pretty much every major network will have live coverage of the royal wedding, because let's face it, apart from a hangover, there's not much else to compete with on a Saturday morning. However, ABC, CBS and BBC America will all live stream the ceremony from Windsor starting around 7 a.m.

Pick of the coverage

For a less-stuffy take on what is sure to be a ceremony overflowing with conservative tradition, "The Royal Wedding Live With Cord and Tish!" on HBO, hosted by the in-character comedians Molly Shannon and Will Ferrell, should deliver a lighter look at the royal wedding beginning at 7:30 a.m.

In the royal vein

Lifetime might have given us the brilliant "Harry & Meghan: A Royal Romance" TV movie, but Hallmark is rewarding royal-romance fiends with an all-day lineup of royalty-themed movies including Markle's own 2016 Hallmark movie, "Dater's Handbook."

Drug Companies Fear Release Of New $2 Sex Pill For Older Men

Men in clinical trial see huge boost in desire, strength of erections, and sexual activity without side effects.

NEW YORK - It's hard to believe that in America today an affordable pill that could improve the sex lives of millions of men is in danger of being yanked from the shelves. And it's just because big drug companies fear for their profits.

The pharmaceutical industry is desperately

Pharma's efforts, sales have already exceeded expectations.

Exciting Benefits

There are very good reasons why sales are booming and drug companies want it gone. Apart from costing just two dollars per daily dose, the clinical results confirm JackedUp's active ingredient is very impressive. It Viagra) and make big profits. Plus, if you're over 50 and suffering from low sex drive, decreased stamina and inability to perform, low testosterone is the biggest factor. If you can safely boost your testosterone, you won't need their expensive pills. That's the very reason big business is trying to have it pulled from the shelves.

Strong Clinical Results Worry Big Pharma

Recent clinical trials on JackedUp's active ingredient have made the drug companies more desperate. The trial results were published in major medical journals, and doctors are now recommending JackedUp to patients.

The testing was done on men 40 - 65 years old, and the results were remarkable. The men who took the active ingredient in JackedUp reported major improvements in their sex lives. Their ability to get and keep erections went up by over 200%. Libido and sex drive surged. Even staying power and stamina during sex more than doubled!

Head of product development, Dave McNeill, said the big drug companies weren't worried at first. "They didn't care because the active ingredient can take a few weeks before many men really feel the benefits. But these awesome clinical trials really got their attention. They're learning A LOT of men will wait a few weeks if it means avoiding negative side effects and saving money."

How It Works

The "JackedUp" pill works by helping older men produce more testosterone. It doesn't force dangerous fake testosterone into your body like injections do. Instead, it works with your body to produce testosterone naturally. And the results have been extraordinary. It's like your body reboots itself to feel like it did in the prime of your life.

Initial Users Are Thrilled...And Worried

"JackedUp has been awesome for my sex drive and performance! I'm worried it may not be available in the future. The idea that it may be taken away just to secure some big drug company's profits is very frustrating."

- Rob H., 49 years old, Colorado Springs, CO

"My wife and I were both sexually vibrant until I had prostate cancer. After my surgery we tried everything my doctor recommended but nothing worked. Within a few weeks of taking JackedUp, everything has been functioning beautifully and we've been riding high ever since!"

- Ken S., 78 years old, Phoenix, AZ

Doctors Speak Out

Drug companies are also concerned that doctors are now recommending JackedUp. The active ingredient has strong clinical results and lacks the side effects seen in current drugs on the market. This makes it an easy option for doctors to suggest.

Big Pharma Worried: Older men are having better sex after taking the newly released $2 pill called JackedUp. Clinical trials show active ingredient triggers surge in desire, strength of erections, and sexual activity in older men.

Dr. Laguna-Bedia, a specialist in internal medicine says, "A lot of men think their lack of interest and inability to perform are simply parts of aging. This is just not true. JackedUp can help these men regain a healthy appetite for sex and the physical ability to perform."

"JackedUp works by boosting key male hormones without side effects. The benefits of these hormones to sexual health are well known, but they actually do more than that. Men also report more energy, less body fat and higher motivation," said Dr. G. Pereira, a renowned surgeon in Florida.

Dr. Jacob Moss notes, "I recommend JackedUp if you're struggling with getting and keeping erections or low libido. It's also a great option for men who want to last longer and have more control over when they orgasm."

Special Opportunity for Our Readers

Drug companies are fighting hard to get rid of this product. This is making inventory disappear fast. Thankfully, a special discounted supply has been reserved for Metro Boston readers. But only for those who call within the next 48 hours.

This is the best opportunity to try JackedUp risk-free with their 100% results guarantee.

A Regional Order Hotline has been set up for local readers to call. This gives all men an equal chance to try JackedUp.

Starting at 6:00 am today the order hotline will be open for the next 48 hours. All you have to do is call TOLL FREE 1-888-876-7437 and the company will do the rest.

Due to the possibility of JackedUp being pulled from the shelf, phone lines are often busy. If you call and do not immediately get through, please be patient and call back. Current supplies of JackedUp are limited, and callers that don't get through to the order hotline within the next 48 hours will be forced to wait for more inventory to be produced. This can take as long as 6 weeks.

"If you're over 50 and suffering from low sex drive, decreased stamina and inability to perform, low testosterone is the biggest factor. Drug companies do NOT want men to know about this affordable new pill..."

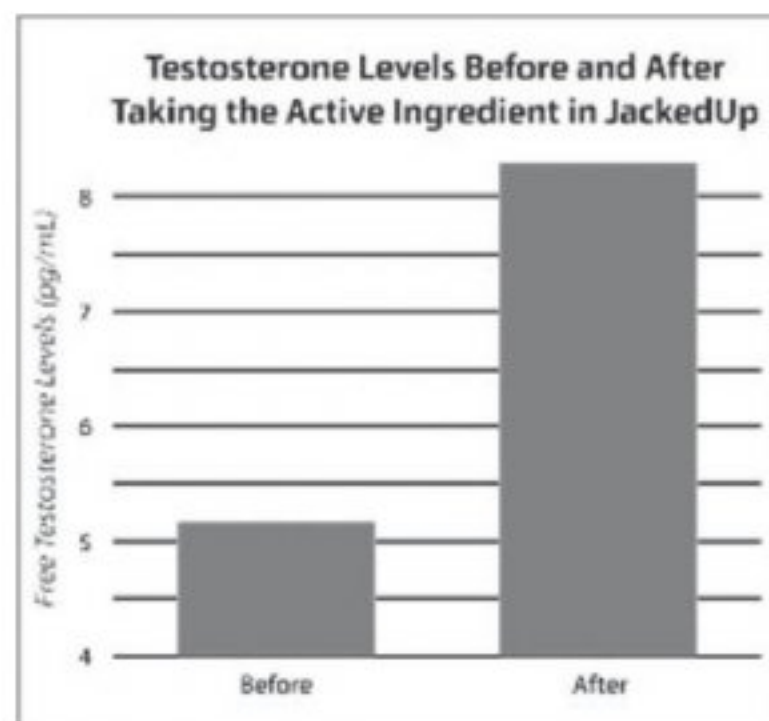

trying to stop shipments of the remarkable new "JackedUp" pill. Big Pharma is worried because men are reporting increased sex drive, stronger erections and more stamina - all without the side-effects and $40-per-pill price tag associated with drugs like Viagra. Clinical results show men feel these benefits within just a few weeks of taking JackedUp's active ingredient.

The pill, made for men over 50, was released early last month. Despite Big

The product also has a unique ability to help men feel more passion, desire, and sex drive. These impressive benefits come from boosting testosterone levels by up to a whopping 193%. Doctors are astounded by its effects.

Why do drug companies want this pill stopped? Since the "JackedUp" pill is natural, drug companies can't patent it (like they did with

Ryan Reynolds on the joys and challenges of playing the Merc with the Mouth

The Canadian actor talks with Metro about what it means for him to be film's most popular antihero with "Deadpool 2."

PATRICIA CARRANZA MWN

After 25 years in the film industry, Ryan Reynolds tells Metro that playing Deadpool has been the greatest privilege of his career, allowing him to be authentic and break the fourth wall between him and the audience. But he admits that, at first, he wasn't sure the project would be successful.

"The first time I dressed like Deadpool I had a lot of doubts about the impact it would have on people," Reynolds says. "I was not sure if the story would connect. I really felt stupid and I remember telling my wife: 'I'll be using a giant red wet condom as a body-suit the entire movie,' and she replied, 'Do it and suck it up.'"

But his doubts disappeared when he saw the success of the first installment, which managed to raise $783 million worldwide. He hopes the sequel, which hits theaters this weekend, will also be well received by audiences.

How has your life changed since playing a character like Deadpool?

It really has been a very pleasant experience, although at first I doubted a bit about Deadpool's connection with the audience, but in the end, I realized that it was the best decision I could have made. It may sound like a cliché, but my dreams were fulfilled by being part of this story, and I am very excited.

What has been your biggest challenge with playing Deadpool?

Deadpool's essence is to be authentic because he is like a child and spectators can see that. Without that authenticity, there is no story. It seems to me that the main challenge is to show people that Deadpool is authentic in his way of being, not only with the audience, but with the elements that revolve around him and that cannot be seen in any other film, and as an actor, it is complicated.

What is the feature you most admire about Deadpool's personality?

I like that he is a free character and always says what he thinks without stopping himself. For example, there is a phrase that I like about him, which is: "Wherever hell is, that zone belongs to me." I like him a lot because he has very funny, but also has obscure parts.

The production was tragic due to the death of stunt performer Joi Harris. Is the film a tribute to her?

Of course. She was an amazing person, but unfortunately when she did the exercises on her motorcycle, she lost her life. It was something that should not have happened, and we do have something planned for her in the movie. ... Words are clumsy and inappropriate when someone wants to express what happened because we could hurt her family. I admire her a lot because she was one of the pioneer women in motorcycling, and we will do whatever is necessary to respect her legacy. Part of it is to be discreet and do it as humanly as possible.

Who is your favorite Marvel character?

I like each one of the Marvel characters. I really like all the Avengers, but I think Black Panther is one of my favorites. I also loved the last Thor.

Which character have you enjoyed most, Green Lantern or Deadpool?

Definitely Deadpool. The two have their charm, but I think Deadpool has certainly been a truly wonderful experience and I am very grateful for the privilege of putting on this character's costume.

Did you choose the movie's playlist?

Of course! No, not the whole playlist really, but some songs I did. I really like music from the '80s and I think that is reflected in the movies.

3 Questions with Mary Steenburgen

Diane Keaton, Jane Fonda, Candice Bergen and Mary Steenburgen unite in "Book Club," a comedy about a group of friends who find romantic inspiration after reading "Fifty Shades of Grey."

The press tour for the film recently brought Steenburgen to Boston, which was a treat for the actress because she loves the area—the Oscar winner and her husband, former "Cheers" star Ted Danson, have a home on Martha's Vineyard.

Ahead, Steenburgen opens up about working her famous co-stars, "Fifty Shades" and more.

The film features a lot of vino. Who's your favorite co-star to drink with?
I can't pick a favorite among those ladies. I kind of love us as a group. I'm the tequila drinker in the group. Jane is the dirty martini. Candice and Diane have really weird wine habits of like red wine with ice and a little water in it, which is so strange given that Candice spent a lot of time in Europe.

"Book Club" hits theaters this weekend. PARAMOUNT PICTURES

Did you actually read "Fifty Shades"?

I skimmed the book for naughty bits. I wasn't going to make a bigger commitment. ... It's definitely a sexy book, and probably good for people in a weird way in that maybe it caused people to be slightly more open sexually in terms of talking or communicating. I don't know. If you need that, that's good. I've always just been pretty comfortable that way. But Jane says that it's good for America.

Do you have a favorite book recommendation?
"Dear Madam President" by Jennifer Palmieri. I loved the book. The subtitle is, "An Open Letter to the Women Who Will Run the World." It really talks about all the things that are different about a woman running for political office that even those of us who care about such things and feel that's a good thing might not realize. Having had one of my closest friends run for president [Hillary Clinton], I did see a lot of these things. Jennifer was Hillary's communications director. It's just a little book, but there were some really stunning insights there.

The ultimate guide to Boston's beer gardens

Sip brews all summer long at these outdoor hotspots.
MATT JUUL

As the weather heats up, it's time to head outside to enjoy a few brews. Luckily, there's no shortage of awesome outdoor spaces serving up pints this season.

Aeronaut Allston

Back for its third year, Aeronaut Brewing will once again take over Zone 3 in Allston this summer. The Somerville brewery will set up shop at 267 Western Ave. on Wednesdays from 5 p.m. to 9:30 p.m., and Fridays from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. beginning June 1 and ending on Sept. 28. In addition to the brews, the beer garden will feature live music and artistic performances, plus plenty of food trucks.

its American Fresh Beer Garden back to 301 Canal St. in Assembly Row this season. Stop by after 5 p.m. during the week or after noon on weekends to enjoy a few brews plus a variety of free programming, including outdoor trivia, live music, bocce tournaments and more. You can also bring your pooch along for some fun, as the beer garden is dog-friendly, although only up to five dogs are allowed in the area at a time.

Craft Collective Beer Barn

Beer fans now have another reason to visit the SoWa Open Market on Sundays. SoWa has teamed up with Craft Collective for a new Beer Barn, a beer hall meets taproom set-up that features a host of local brews and ciders, plus lawn games and live music.

Greenway

Visitors to the Greenway

will have two spots to enjoy libations this season. After a successful debut last year, the popular Trilium Garden will return to High Street across from the Rows Wharf in late May to serve up brews and wine on Wednesdays through Fridays from 2 p.m. to 10 p.m., as well as Saturdays and Sundays beginning at 11 a.m. Downeast Cider will also join the fun on the Greenway in 2018, as its new "Back Porch" in Dewey

Park near South Station will be open Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays beginning on May 21.

Lamplighter

Head to the New England Open Markets' Central Flea to sip Lamplighter brews outside. The Cambridge brewery's beer garden at University Park will be up and running every Sunday through October 28 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. The space can fit up to 100 and features everything from lawn games to food trucks.

The Patios

From minigolf to puppies, there are a ton of reasons to visit The Patios at City Hall Plaza. Beer lovers will want to stop by to check out the Brew Yard, featuring Wachusett Brewing Company's Airstream trailer. Visitors can swing by for a few pints starting at 4 p.m. during the week and at 11 a.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

Marlon Wayans talks 'Woke-ish,' 'White Chicks 2'

The comedian performs in Medford this weekend. MATT JULI

Audiences have been clamoring for a "White Chicks 2" since the original comedy became a surprise box office success in 2004.

Marlon Wayans, who starred in the hit flick opposite his brother Shawn, is apparently just as excited about a possible sequel as the fans. The actor and comedian hinted in an interview on MTV's "TRL" earlier this year that there's been "some rumblings happening," and he's had a few discussions with his brothers about making a follow-up to the film.

Ahead of his show in the Boston area at the Chevalier Theatre this weekend, Wayans reiterated his interest in doing a "White Chicks 2" during a chat with Metro.

"I think that'll be awesome if it happens," says Wayans. "I don't control that stuff, man. If it does happen, I'm willing to make it happen."

"It's all about the business of things," he adds, noting that securing a budget and other behind the scenes issues have to be worked out before making a sequel happen. "Once we do that, I'm all in."

For now, Wayans is concentrating on his sitcom "Marlon," which is set to return for season two on NBC in June, as well as his stand-up work. The comic has been making people laugh for decades, but Wayans didn't take the plunge into the world of comedy specials until this past February with the release of "Woke-ish" on Netflix.

Although many people have brought up the idea of doing a special to Wayans over the years, he didn't want to "rush out there and do it," preferring to wait until he "had something to say" and "a point of view on things that are happening."

Wayans finally felt ready leading up to "Woke-ish," which tackles everything from his views on parenting to Donald Trump. While he feels like the current climate and political correctness have made it a bit harder for comics to do what they do, Wayans welcomes the challenge of finding the funny during such divisive times.

"I definitely think it makes it harder," he says. "At the same time, obstacles are good."

"Laughter is bonding," Wayans adds. "Everybody has their gift, their purpose, and mine is to make people smile to the best of my abilities. Even if you fail at doing it, it's a lot of fun trying."

Manspreaders

Yes, men have balls. Some are big, and quite a few are small. However, are testicles really such a nuisance that men must spread their legs to the maximum while seated in public spaces? Yes, I'm referring to the controversial act of "manspreading." It happens on park benches, it happens on buses, and as Instagram and Twitter will show us, it happens all too often on already crowded subways. Imagine if ladies asserted their right to "stretch out" on subway seats. I bet it'd feel great for us too, but alas, we don't have that social privilege. Not only does manspreading take up double, sometimes TRIPLE the seating space, it casts far too much of a spotlight on your junk. Women, children and, yes, even other men don't need to see that much of your crotch. I'm talking un-spreading yourself just a few inches. Come on. I doubt they're that big. Bring it on in, boys; close 'em up.

Report: Boston, NYC have worst airports when it comes to summer-travel delays

In a study of Transportation Department data for 50 sites around the country, Logan stood out for its poor on-time arrivals, coming in at fifth-worst.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

Have you planned any summer getaways yet?

If so, you might want to already prepare yourself for some delays at the airport.

Ahead of prime vacation season, financial site MagnifyMoney ranked the best and worst airports in the country for summer travel, and Boston and New York City did not fare well.

The ranking relies on Department of Transportation airport arrival time data for the 50 busiest airports in the country between 2008 and 2017, according to the site. Out of all those travel hubs, Boston Logan was ranked the fifth worst when it comes to delays.

Logan has an on-time arrival rate of 72.5 percent, according to MagnifyMoney's 10-year analysis looking at June, July and August flights.

If you're traveling in and out of the New York

City area, expect to wait even longer. Newark-Liberty International was the No. 1 worst airport for delays, according to the report, with a rate of on-time arrivals of 67 percent over the last 10 years.

LaGuardia came in second, with an on-time arrival rate of 68 percent, and JFK Airport was ranked fourth worst, with an on-time arrival rate of 70.5 percent. (San Francisco was in between at number 3, with a rate of 69.2 percent).

In general, summer is worse when it comes to delays than winter, according to the report, with more than half of all airports reporting more delays during those summer months than the winter ones.

June seems to be the month during which you'll wait the longest: more than 75 percent of all airports reviewed had the most delays then.

But even before summer really kicks into gear, you may find yourself delayed. LaGuardia and JFK were also ranked the worst airports to fly out of for Memorial Day weekend getaways, according to consumer research group ValuePenguin.

If you plan to leave the city for Memorial Day, you could be delayed at either of those airports for 61 to 63 minutes, according to ValuePenguin's analysis of Bureau of Transportation data — the longest delays for that weekend in the country.

If you want to avoid summer delays, the best airport per MagnifyMoney's ranking is Honolulu International, which has an arrival rate of 86.7 percent — as if you needed another reason to plan a vacation to Hawaii.

Keolis announces commuter rail schedule changes for spring, summer

These new times go into effect Monday, May 21, and are meant to minimize train traffic, accommodate more passengers and make the system run more smoothly.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

The commuter-rail schedule will see some changes for the spring/summer season.

Keolis Commuter Services announced this week some of the adjustments that will be made to certain commuter rail routes as we head into the warmer months. These changes, Keolis said, are meant to use new or improved rail infrastructure, eliminate train conflicts and minimize traffic that can lead to delays, and will go into effect Monday, May 21.

“This spring/summer schedule change seeks to achieve those goals with minor timing adjustments and to reflect the increasing demand at the new Boston Landing Station.”

Keolis general manager and CEO David Scorey

Beginning Monday, four more trains will stop at Boston Landing Station on the Framingham/Worcester line, since more riders have been using that stop, which opened a year ago.

On the Newbury/Rockport line, the off-peak Train 118, which currently departs Rockport at 3:20 p.m., will instead leave 10 minutes later “to reduce potential train-to-train conflicts that can impact performance,” according to Keolis. On the Providence line, Train 8805 will combine with Train 801, which will continue the same service and schedule, but on a different train.

For those customers affected by the Wollaston Station project in Quincy, Train 085 on the Greenbush Line will begin to stop at Quincy Center.

Trains on all other lines will only see schedule changes between one and two minutes, Keolis said, which are made to help improve performance. Changes on individual lines can be viewed at mbta.com/schedules/commuter-rail.

Commuter rail schedules are adjusted twice a year in coordination with the MBTA, according to Keolis, to better meet passenger needs and to account for upgrades to the rail system.

“Whether through investments made by the MBTA and Keolis or through minor adjustments to the schedule, we’re always seeking to improve the passenger experience and reliability on commuter rail,” said David Scorey, Keolis general manager and CEO, in a statement. “This spring/summer schedule change seeks to achieve those goals with minor timing adjustments and to reflect the increasing demand at the new Boston Landing Station. Many passengers won’t notice this schedule change, but we encourage all riders to check schedules before May 21.”

More than 500 million fake Facebook accounts have been removed, according to a Facebook Community Standards Enforcement report released Tuesday.

The Facebook Community Standards Enforcement Report also covers how increased efforts have been made to remove content that contains graphic violence, adult nudity, sexual activity, terrorist propaganda, hate speech and spam.

The social network says it has built artificial-intelligence technology to increase its ability to find and flag questionable content before most users can. In addition to the 583 million fake Facebook accounts that were disabled, 837 million pieces of spam content were also removed in the first quarter of 2018. The social network claims it was able to use artificial intelligence to find and flag the content before it was reported.

Although artificial intelligence has helped with detecting fake accounts and spam, there still needs to be some improvements made in artificial intelligence technology to detect hate speech.

"Technology isn't going to solve all of it, but we will make progress," Rosen told the Financial Times.

That's where effort from its users becomes more important than ever. While algorithms or different forms of artificial intelligence can be used to detect and remove fake and offensive content before it spreads to the Facebook community, the social network still relies on its users to submit questionable content to be checked by Facebook's review team. Trump says 'We'll see' on North Korea summit, to insist on denuclearization

Cancellation of the summit would deal a major blow to what would be the biggest diplomatic achievement of Trump's presidency.

President Donald Trump acknowledged on Wednesday it was unclear if his summit with North Korea would go ahead after Pyongyang threatened to pull out of the unprecedented meeting, a move that could deny him a potentially major foreign policy achievement.

North Korea threw the June 12 summit between its leader Kim Jong Un and Trump into doubt on Wednesday, saying it might not attend if Washington continues to demand it unilaterally abandon its nuclear arsenal. North Korea also called off talks with South Korea scheduled for Wednesday, blaming U.S.-South Korean military exercises.

Pyongyang has a long history of threatening to walk away from international negotiations if it does not get its way. ISTOCK

"We'll have to see," Trump told reporters in the Oval Office when asked if the summit was still on, though he insisted he would not back down from his demand for North Korea's denuclearization.

"No decision, we haven't been notified at all. ... We haven't seen anything, we haven't heard anything," he said.

Trump's relatively muted response was in marked contrast to just a few days ago when he exulted over North Korea's release of three Americans, welcoming them home with praise for Kim and an expression of high hopes that the summit would produce "something very meaningful." REUTERS

Site launched to help Mass residents compare healthcare costs, quality

Massachusetts residents have a new tool to help them make healthcare decisions with the launch Wednesday of an online transparency website.

The Center for Health Information and Analysis' new CompareCare site, located at MassCompareCare.gov, uses claims data to show the full amount medical providers were paid, by both the insurer and the patient, for nearly 300 procedures including X-rays, MRIs, office visits and blood tests. It also provides links to individual health-plan websites, where consumers can find information about their expected out-of-pocket costs.

"We are hopeful that this tool can be used by individuals to assist them in finding providers that are both high-quality and lower cost," Massachusetts Association of Health Plans CEO Lora Pellegrini said in a statement. STATE HOUSE NEWS SERVICE

4 Things to check out at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Arts Festival

The Steel City will come alive with its free arts festival this June.

patrick.king@metro.us

Pittsburgh will explode with all things creative as the Three Rivers Arts Festival takes over the city from June 1 through June 10. If you have never spent any time in the Steel City, this would be a perfect time to check out the best of what this cool and hip city has to offer along with some amazing events. And best of all, everything is FREE! Here are some of the best things to check out at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Arts Festival.

1 "Six Plates for Anabelle and Maggie" by Dee Briggs

Soul legend Mavis Staples will be performing a free concert at this year's festival. ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

The third sculpture by famous sculptor Dee Briggs will make its debut outside of Gateway Station. Briggs' symmetrical plate work is known to be mesmerizing and we can't wait to see what she delivers for this year's festival.

The sculpture will be open to the public from June 1st to June 4 from 12 p.m. to 9 p.m.

2 Amazing live music

One thing festival goers can count on each year is an amazingly stacked lineup of free live music.

Ricky Skaggs and the Kentucky thunder, The Mavericks, Valerie June, Everything Everything, and many more.

Check out the full lineup of artists and schedule at traf.trustarts.org/events.

3 "Faces of Pittsburgh" by Janette Beckman

Renowned rock and hip-hop photographer Janette Beckman will bring her new photo workshop "Faces of Pittsburgh" to this year's Festival — focusing on "empower and engage students from underserved communities." Beckman will send her students out into the communities of Pittsburgh to take photos of the real people who live there and at the end, will display them on walls and billboards around town.

Classes will take place on the Gateway Lawn on June 1 through the 4th from 12 p.m. to 8 p.m.

4 The Festival's Juried Visual Art Exhibition

One of the festival's longest running attractions is the Juried Visual Art Exhibition. The exhibition will go on display at the Trust Arts Education Center nestled in Pittsburgh's Cultural District and will feature the work of the city's most talented artists. While attending you have a chance to vote — along with a panel of jurors — one which artists should take a home a $500 prize for their work at this year's festival.

The exhibit will be open to the public from June 1 to June 4 from 12 p.m. to 8 p.m.

THE GOLDEN STATE OF THE EAST

DANNY PICARD

Listen to "The Danny Picard Show" at dannypicard.com. Follow him on Twitter @dannypicard.

I already told you I didn't see this coming. Not with Kyrie Irving out for the rest of the season.

But now that it's happening, it's time to face the facts: the Boston Celtics are the Golden State Warriors of the East.

That's right, I said it. The Celtics are the Warriors.

Without Irving, I never thought I'd feel this way about this group this soon. But here they are, up 2-0 on LeBron James and the Cleveland Cavaliers in the Eastern Conference Finals. Some of that has to do with home-court advantage. Some of it has to do with Brad Stevens being one of the best coaches in the NBA. But most of it has to do with the fact that the Celtics are just playing the way they're capable of playing.

Would it be nice to have Irving on the court? No doubt about it. But even without him right now, we're witnessing a handful of lottery picks live up to their potential on the biggest stage.

And that's kind of what happened to Golden State, isn't it?

The Warriors had been playing below-.500 basketball for years, and then Steph Curry showed up. Then Klay Thompson arrived. And then, the "Splash Brothers" were formed.

Now, Kevin Durant has joined them, and it's been pure domination ever since. But even before Durant signed in the summer of 2016, Curry and Thompson led the Warriors to the playoffs in 2012-13 and again in 2013-14, only to bring an NBA Championship to Golden State in 2014-15, and make a second-straight appearance in the Finals in 2015-16.

The Warriors' dominance had kind of come out of nowhere. All of a sudden, in 2014, Curry and Thompson became must-see TV. They were supposed to be good, but not this good.

Then again, maybe they were.

Curry was drafted No. 7 overall in 2009. Thompson was drafted 11th overall in 2011. And they had some help the year in which they won the title. Draymond Green was an early second-round pick in 2012 and had proven to be a steal. But they also got contributions from some lottery picks in Andrew Bogut (No. 1 overall in 2005), Harrison Barnes (No. 7 overall in 2012), and the NBA Finals MVP Andre Iguodala (No. 9 overall in 2004).

The 2014-15 champion Warriors had a group of lottery picks who came together to play to their expectations and then some, all while being led by coach Steve Kerr, who took over for Mark Jackson after the 2013-14 season.

Right now, these Celtics are must-see TV.

The Celtics have 10 wins this postseason, and in all but one of them - Game 5 against Milwaukee - they've scored at least 100 points.

And like the Warriors did in 2014-15, the C's are slaying the beast in LeBron. With Game 3 on Saturday in Cleveland, it's not over yet. But it's interesting to compare the 2014-15 Warriors to these current Celtics.

Jaylen Brown and Jayson Tatum were both drafted No. 3 overall. Marcus Smart was drafted No. 6 overall. And I think people forget that Al Horford was drafted No. 3 overall back in 2007, behind Greg Oden and Kevin Durant.

These Celtics were expected to make an impact, even if the extent and the timing of that impact might have caught some people off guard. And these Celtics aren't going to be a one-hit wonder, either. They're here to stay, and will only improve when Irving (No. 1 overall in 2011) and Gordon Hayward (No. 9 overall in 2010) get back on the court next season. Much like how the Warriors improved when they signed Durant.

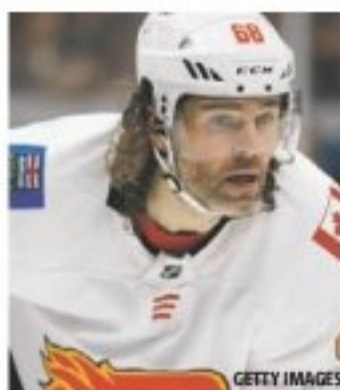

Three years after their 2014-15 championship, Golden State is still a dominant force in the West. And if they can handle their business against the Houston Rockets in the Western Conference Finals, they just might run into the Golden State of the East.

FOREVER YOUNG

Jaromir Jagr is a national ... well, worldly treasure. The man with the mullet is set to play pro hockey next season at the age of 46. It won't be in the NHL unfortunately, as Jagr is set to play for the Kladno Knights in the Czech Republic's WSM Liga. He also owns the team.

Jagr played 22 games in the NHL this past season for the Flames, and given Jagr's comeback history — there's a good chance he'll be back in North America at some point.

Cheers to Jagr, and all of sports' old dudes.

Of note, Colts kicker Adam Vinatieri is the oldest player in the NFL at the age of 45. In the NBA, the honor goes to Kings swingman Vince Carter — who is 41. Bartolo Colon is the oldest MLB player at 44 (he'll turn 45 later this month). And with Jagr momentarily out of the picture, Matt Culen is the oldest NHL player at 41.

DEZ STILL A FREE AGENT

Remember all that buzz about Dez Bryant potentially signing with an NFC East team not named the Cowboys a month ago after he was released? Well, that buzz is now deadlier than Kristen Stewart's eyes.

Bryant has only been offered a contract by one team — the Ravens — and he declined their offer. Bryant tweeted this week that he does not regret turning down Baltimore.

"Nope, not 1 bit and very appreciative of the offer," @DezBryant wrote. "What's crazy is how reports like this will try to tarnish someone's character ... the slight jab saying it's not easy to get along with. I thought the media would give up by now with betraying me as something that I'm not."

Bryant insists that he not being signed to a team yet is "his own personal decision" and does not have anything to do with teams in the NFL believing he's not worth the trouble.

LEBRON IS READY TO QUIT

In his NBA postseason career, LeBron James has been the king of the split as most of his less-talented teams have at least won one of two in the first two games in a series.

LeBron helped fuel the Cavaliers' phenomenal comeback in the 2016 NBA Finals against Golden State, a series in which the Warriors were originally up, 2-0. But the 2016 Cavs were a much more talented team that this current Cleveland group — and all signs point to LeBron going down in flames this time around, against the Celtics.

The history is not on LeBron's side. He is just 1-5 in his postseason career when down 0-2 in a series and NBA teams in an 0-2 hole are 19-278 all-time.

Ten years ago, LeBron's Cavs were down 0-2 in a series to the eventual NBA champion Celtics and they did force a Game 7 — winning Games 3, 4 and 6 at home. So maybe the same script is followed this time around.

But it is important to remember that LeBron is about to become a free agent again. When that is looming, LeBron has been prone to check out.

LeBron's Cavs were down 2-1 in a semifinals series to the Celtics in 2010, and his Cavs then lost the next three games. A few weeks later, LeBron bolted for Miami.

In the 2014 NBA Finals against the Spurs, LeBron's Heat team was punched in the mouth in Game 2 and never recovered — losing three straight in a quick five-game series. A few weeks later, LeBron left South Beach to return to Ohio.

Tuesday night's 107-94 loss to the Celtics could be the final time we see LeBron fully engaged this season. This morning, he may very well have moved on mentally to the next stop in his career.

COACHING FINALLY MATTERS

The NBA has always had the reputation of being a player's league, and if you have the best player — you magically become a smart coach. Miami Heat coach Erik Spoelstra quickly went from "in over his head" to "one of the NBA's sharp young minds" by winning titles with LeBron.

Truth be told, however, the jury should still be out Spoelstra.

Much more impressive are the jobs Warriors coach Steve Kerr, Rockets coach Mike D'Antoni and Celtics coach Brad Stevens have done in recent years.

Mark Jackson's Warriors were bounced in the first round of the playoffs in 2014. The very next year with a very similar team, Kerr and the Dubs won the title. Since then, they've become the most impressive NBA dynasty since the Michael Jordan Bulls.

D'Antoni and Stevens have not yet won titles, but both have been shining this postseason. D'Antoni quickly made James Harden into an MVP candidate, and despite the Rockets' loss to the Warriors in Game 1 of the West Finals Monday — D'Antoni made his presence felt.

On the offensive end, the Rockets attacked defensive liability

Stephen Curry and it worked, very well. Harden finished with 41 points, most of which came at Curry's expense. Fellow guard Chris Paul had 23, and a third guard — Eric Gordon — had 15 off the bench.

And Stevens has been downright brilliant this postseason. He too has exploited defensive challenged players this postseason, as the Celtics ruthlessly went after J.J. Redick in Round 2. In Game 1 against Cleveland, the Celtics defense held LeBron to 15 points by switching screens and switching assignments when the ball got down low.

Yay, coaching.
